

Climbing the Ladder

Here's a couple of contestants trying out for a new reality game show called "Dum-Dums on the Top Rung". The grand prize is a no-frills trip to the hospital ward. Contestant number one is in the lead with his home-made, uh, ladder. Apparently the light bulb above his head went out when he came up with the bright idea for this contraption, and he was trying to replace it.

The second entry is a dynamic duo that may also qualify for one of the many "insane uses of a backhoe bucket" award. I'm not sure what they're doing up there, but it looks like they're preparing for an inverted swan dive.

So who will win in the end? Neither. Odds are with this type of unsafe behavior, they'll eventually end up in either a body cast or a body bag.